

NEWTONS APPLE

I got the idea to Newtons Apple as long ago as in 1995. It appeared in one of my sketchbooks as a drawing for a painting. Mr. Isaak Newton, scientist and founder of the law of gravity, has left his place under the apple tree, to go and see the “island” of forest floating by. In this moment the famous apple is falling from the tree, but he is not there! What if this really had taken place? Would things float around? What would the world look like?

MATTI REIVI EARTH DRAIN